

IIRD - Referee Hand Signals (Ver 2.0 Aug 2010)

Official Timeout

Timeout

Skater Fouls (Minor Penalties)

Out of Bounds

Illegal Procedure

Includes either of the following minor fouls: kicking the ball or failure to drop the ball(s) when OUT.

Delay of Game

Usually for skaters not in position within 15 seconds between rounds.

There are several ways to combine the above signals and let a skater know they received a minor penalty.

You...

...got a minor...

...for stepping out of bounds.

The Ref may decide to use both arms to signal two things at once...

You got a minor... ..for stepping out of bounds.

Often the reason for the foul is obvious to an experienced player and the Referee can use an abbreviated series of signals...

You... ..stepped out of bounds (that's a minor).

You got a minor (we both know you stepped out of bounds).

Skater Ejected (Major Infractions)

Ejection from the Game

Signals to Correct or Clarify the Situation

Dead Ball

This can indicate the skater is NOT out yet, because he was hit by a 'dead ball'

Skater Fell

Dodger is OUT

Referee simply points to the Skater and then points toward the outfield to send the skater there.

Usually given as a signal to a Dodger who does not realize he was hit (example: by a soft hit on the back).

Dodger is still IN play

Usually given to signal to a Dodger who thinks he is out when in fact the Dodger was hit by a 'dead ball'.

Another EXAMPLE...

Hey, come back in, you are not out yet... ...the ball that hit you was a dead ball.
